London road casualties: Greenwich sees biggest fall

by Dick Townsend-Smith

Farewell, Drummer Lee

Two-minute silence in Woolwich marks soldier's funeral

GREENWICH is leading the way in making roads safer.

Road casualty figures for last year show the biggest fall of all the London boroughs with 17 per cent fewer injuries.

There were reductions in every category of road casualty: 127 pedestrians injured (down 20 per cent on the previous year), 56 pedal cyclists hurt (down 27 per cent), 121 bikers hurt (down 8 per cent), and 384 car drivers and passengers injured (down 17 per cent).

The news highlights the impact of a range of local initiatives designed to improve road safety which include the introduction of 20mph zones and traffic management schemes, road safety workshops and lessons in schools, cycle training and enforcement action.

The figures compare 2012 with the year before, and were published by Transport for London last week.

The Mayor of London has set a target for the capital's boroughs to reduce accidents by 40 per cent by 2020 and the figures show Greenwich has already improved by 38 per cent, putting it well on the way to meeting the target.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the royal borough's cabinet member responsible for road safety, said: "All the signs indicate that the wide range of steps we have been taking are paying important dividends in reducing accidents and injuries on our roads. It's pleasing that the many initiatives we have set up are making a real difference."

Tables make streets feel safer

I WAS very shocked to hear that cafes in Eltham are to be charged for using pavement space. This will mainly affect small independent businesses which Eltham residents want to support and keep. Research has shown that people at tables on pavements increases the social activity and therefore safety on the streets. We really don't want to see any more local businesses replaced by pawn or loan shops.

Patricia Somerset
● THE council wants to encourage street trading in a safe and suitable way which increases local trade. Most London councils, if not all, operate a system of this type. Our fees are comparatively low and we've received positive feedback from many traders who have said this will create a level playing field.

Thank you on behalf of 'The Few'

THANK you to the Mayor of Royal Greenwich, Cllr Angela Cornforth, for her kind words at the memorial to Richard Reynell, our great uncle, and for her generous hospitality afterwards at the reception. It was much appreciated by all. Despite the weather it was an excellent turnout. The volunteers at the Shoreham Aircraft Museum did a terrific job and deserve much applause for their dedication and resolve in wanting to recognise those pilots that fell during the Battle of Britain. We will be eternally grateful to them and to the Royal Borough of Greenwich for their support. The memorial stone is another symbol of the rich military history within your borough and we hope that it will remind the many who see it of the sacrifices our servicemen take in defending our freedoms and way of life. Its position is perfect with its aerial command of the London skyline, a skyline that was angry with aircraft 73 years ago but which today is a lot more tranquil because of Richard Reynell and "The Few" that fought alongside him. Thank you again. We will very much look forward to having picnics on that hill for years to come.

David Caillard, great-nephew of Richard 'Dickie' Reynell

● THANKS for writing, David. The Shoreham Aircraft Museum is campaigning to get all Battle of Britain pilots who died within a 10-mile radius of its Kent HQ recognised with stone monuments like the one for your great-uncle.

This is not the way to name names

HAS Greenwich Council taken up some non-standard English punctuation for street names? Why should Chandler's Way (sic) - at postcode SE10 0FN - be acceptable? Either it should be Chandler's Way, that is the possessive of a singular Chandler, or Chandler's Way, the possessive of more than one Chandler. This offends me enough as a native English speaker - goodness knows how many non-native speakers it will confuse as a very poor example of English grammar! Can Greenwich Council get it corrected please?

Dr. Valerie Wilson, Greenwich Peninsula

● THERE are cases where words ending in 's' are neither a possessive or a plural. Chandler's - as in Chandler's Ford in Southampton - does not have an apostrophe either. Greenwich, like other local authorities, uses a database which sets out naming conventions including the use of abbreviations and punctuations.

What's in an address?

I'VE long been intrigued by people's addresses in Greenwich, particularly those who clearly live in Kidbrooke but give their address as Blackheath. Will this change round when classy Kidbrooke Village is completed, I wonder? And is it more house prices or ego at play? All very amusing.

Silent majority

A TWO-MINUTE silence to remember murdered soldier Lee Rigby was held at Woolwich Town Hall in Wellington Street at 11am last Friday (July 12).

The public joined faith and community leaders to pay tribute to the 25-year-old drummer from the Royal Artillery Barracks, who died only a few hundred yards away on May 22.

Prayers were led by borough dean, the Rev Mike Leader, who lit candles with Cllr David Grant. A Royal Artillery bugler played the Last Post as Royal British Legion standard bearers lowered flags. They were raised again after the bugler played the Reveille.

As the ceremony took place, the Mayor, Cllr Angela Cornforth, and council leader, Cllr Chris Roberts, laid a wreath on behalf of the borough at Lee Rigby's funeral service at the parish church in his home town of Bury near Manchester.

Double drug haul success

AN Abbey Wood minicab driver caught with cocaine worth £1million has been jailed for three years.

Clive Scales, 53, of Ampleforth Road, was carrying 1 kg of coke in his car when police spotted him driving erratically in Woolwich Road on June 11.

Scales was stopped and quickly arrested, after displaying white powder on his nose, chin and jacket. Officers found a bag of cocaine in the boot of his car. During interviewing, Scales admitted being in possession of drugs and was charged with possession with intent to supply. The cocaine was found to be 91% pure with a street value of more than £1m. Scales pleaded guilty on June 27 at Woolwich Crown Court and was sentenced on July 5.

Investigating officer DC Yeliz Ersiner said: "I am really pleased with the result of this investigation. We will pursue anyone involved in drug dealings and will make sure that they are brought before a court. The confiscation of the cocaine in question that day has made a serious dent in the profit of local criminals."

● OFFICERS have dismantled a large cannabis factory in a Plumstead house after a tip-off from the public.

They found more than 300 plants with an estimated value of £90,000 in the Marmadon Road house which had its windows boarded up from the inside. Sergeant Kevin Hebdon from the Plumstead Safer Neighbourhoods team said: "One of our priorities is to tackle drug dealers and anti-social behaviour in the area. Cannabis factories bring organised crime into communities and are often used to fund other criminal activities. Also, tampering with electricity and the excessive use of intense lights can lead to fires."

Kings of the castle

WORKS to restore a unique borough landmark are forging ahead after contractors started work last month.

Hilton Abbey Ltd are set to complete restoration and improvement works to Severndroog Castle in December.

The 18th century Grade II*-listed building in the Shooters Hill woodlands has been unused for many years and fell into a state of disrepair.

Now it's set to become a major new attraction and community facility.

The project is being led by the Severndroog Castle Building Preservation Trust (SCBPT) with support from the council which granted them a lease to restore and operate the castle.

The trust aims to operate the castle as a heritage and architectural resource as well as a centre for community use.

Plans include a cafe/tea room and hire for weddings, corporate meetings and events, as well as an educational resource for schools and local history groups.

GETTING A MAKEOVER: the much-loved castle in Shooters Hill is set to start life anew once restoration works are complete

It's being funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund with input from English Heritage, the Country Houses Foundation, the Pilgrim Trust, the Architectural Heritage Fund and additional management support from the royal borough.

Greenwich's cabinet member for cultural and creative industries, Cllr Peter Kotz, said: "Over the last ten years we have established links with key stakeholders and organisations which can see the potential in using the castle as an artistic, educational or heritage resource. We are pleased that restoration works are finally moving on and all involved are keeping a close eye on the development as works progress."

Malaria warning for holiday makers

PEOPLE in the borough are being urged to protect themselves against malaria when visiting friends or family living in countries where the disease is prevalent. Public Health England and African Diaspora for Action Against Malaria are working together to promote greater awareness of malaria among local communities as the holiday season begins. A recent report showed 696 Greenwich residents were infected with malaria between 2000 and 2011, the second highest number among the London boroughs after Southwark. During this period, more than nine out of every 10 malaria cases were acquired in Africa. Dr Rachel Heathcock, Public Health England's director of health protection for south east London, said: "Malaria is a preventable disease, so it's concerning that we continue to see high numbers of cases in people from south-east London who have travelled abroad. It is particularly worrying that eight out of ten people who contracted malaria reported not taking anti-malarials during their travels. It is important for people to be aware of the risks from malaria, which is potentially life-threatening, and the benefits of taking anti-malarial medication. "Avoiding mosquito bites when abroad is also crucial and measures such as covering up between dusk and dawn, using insect repellents and bed nets can all help."

Safe travel!

Council leads road safety measures for all ages

Among the road safety measures led by the council are:

- New cycle lanes along the entire length of Trafalgar Road
- Pedestrian islands along Woolwich Road from Gallions Road to Farndale Road and an upgraded zebra crossing near to Victoria Way, with new belisha beacons, renewed markings and an anti-skid surface on Victoria Way
- Pedestrian refuges on Mottingham Road and Rochester Way
- A raised table on Commercial Way and changes to the traffic lights to slow down traffic.

The council's 20mph zone programme included checking the four existing sites around Swingate Lane, Herbert Road, Craigton Road and Eltham Park to ensure that they were reducing vehicle speeds and collisions. As a result changes were made that included:

- Extending some of the zones
- Installing extra traffic calming measures
- Renewing 20mph zone signs
- 'De-cluttering' street furniture.

The borough's cycling programme has included:

- Installing raised junctions at Swingate Lane and Kirkham Street, and at The Slade and Kirkham Street
- A new cycle lane on Eltham Hill
- Cycle parking throughout the borough
- A shared footpath and cycle lane at Falconwood Station.

The council's adult cycle training programme supports more than 200 people each year to develop the skills and confidence to ride in safety on roads and traffic-free routes in the borough.

There has also been a major focus in getting across the road safety message in schools through:

- Bikeability training in 16 primary schools and four secondary schools by the royal borough's in-house cycle instructor team,
- BMX taster sessions in Hornfair Park for 600 young people in a bid to promote cycling in a different and exciting way
- Scooter training to improve skills and road safety awareness for about 900 pupils
- Helping Brooklands, Montbelle, St Thomas More RC and Wyborne primary schools to deliver Bike Breakfasts through the Bike It project, where pupils make smoothies using a smoothie bike
- Road safety workshops and pedestrian skills training in schools and community events.

Schools have also been encouraged to tailor and deliver their own 'Zig Zag Park & Walk' campaigns to discourage irresponsible parking and driving behaviour around schools.

A matter of life and deaf

QUITE A PERFORMANCE: Life and Deaf actors play their part

PERFORMERS at a deaf-friendly festival made their mark at the Old Royal Naval College last week - before taking the event nationwide.

The Include Me in the World: Life and Deaf UK Tour, debuted at Greenwich last Monday and will travel around the country on a 17-day tour, climaxing at Woolwich Tesco Extra on Wednesday July 24.

The festival explores deaf children's identities through dancing, physical theatre, poetry, an exhibition of

by Grace Lipski

photography, poetry and illustration and film.

Activities were on hand in the Discover Greenwich centre for youngsters with poetry and photography workshops and a guided tour. Information stalls giving details and advice were at Cutty Sark Gardens, and local schools performed.

The campaign was spread in a week-long effort by celebrity figures signing the message 'good morning', including

Harry Potter star Daniel Radcliffe and Sir Ian McKellan via the London Underground on digital posters, directing people to the Life and Deaf website.

The Life and Deaf Association is a Greenwich-based organisation launched in 2006 by volunteers who are specialists in the deaf field. The group runs projects using poetry and the arts aimed at developing the communication skills and emotional literacy of deaf and hard of hearing young people.

CENTENARY: Myrtle, with Joan, Elizabeth and Imogen

Gripping yarns of Myrtle, 100

"PRAISE the Lord, I'm one hundred years old and I'm still standing," cried Myrtle Demercado, leaping from her chair on her centenary birthday, writes Rod Kitson.

Myrtle, who was born in Kingston Jamaica on July 5, 1913, moved to Woolwich in 1958, and was an orderly at Hither Green hospital.

"The secret to long life is to be a good person, eat good food and respect others," she told GT, greeting us with a vice-like handshake.

Myrtle was presented with a box of chocolates and a bunch of flowers at Tesco in Woolwich to mark the milestone. She was joined by three generations of her family: daughter Joan, granddaughter Elizabeth, and great-granddaughter Imogen, two.

"She fed the poor every Saturday when she was in Jamaica," Joan said. "She's a strict Catholic and was born under St Francis - the patron saint of the poor. Her health is very good - she's not going anywhere."

Sixty guests came to her 100th birthday party at her home on Walpole Place.

Woolwich theatre school fosters West End talent

Stage notes

by Rod Kitson

ASPIRING actors from a Woolwich theatre school are aiming for the bright lights after graduating this month.

They'll be hoping to follow in the footsteps of two students who are starring in West End shows after leaving the Millennium Performing Arts school on Thomas Street.

The two local brothers, Sam and Josh Wilmott, graduated last year, and are working in theatreland, on the Handspring company's acclaimed War Horse, and Avenue Q respectively.

Millennium began life north of the river in 1997, first sharing space in Camden and Hampstead, before an opportunity came up on Thomas Street in Woolwich in 2008.

The college counts Derek Jacobi as its patron, and Liza Minnelli pops in occasionally to give the students one-to-one performance tips.

Director David McLennan, who set up the school with contemporaries Ikky Maas and Jacki Mitchell, told GT: "Derek's very hands-on – he visits regularly and we write to him often."

"Liza Minnelli is friends with the head of acting here, and asked if she could come along to a class. She came and spent the day with the third-years and gave them all notes about their acting."

"She then told us she wanted to be on the board at the school. Well, we don't have a board, so we have to find another way of her becoming part of the school."

As a nine-year-old lad growing up in a mining town near Glasgow, Donald took the brave step of informing his father that he wanted to be a dancer.

"You'd better go and speak to your mother," his dad told him. Against the odds his mum okayed the unusual career move, and young Donald was enrolled in a Irish dancing class with a lady who lived down the road.

He was a real-life Billy Elliot who moved to London as a teenager to pursue dreams of stardom, later performing alongside Ginger Rogers and Dick Van Dyke.

After his dancing days were over – "at 32 my body had had it" – Donald became a teacher, and went full circle in mentoring the first Billy Elliot to take the smash hit film onto the boards of the West End.

The school teaches three-year courses in dance and music. It has 120 pupils from all over the UK, as well as international students.

"We felt that we wanted to return to traditional theatre values which we felt had been lost a little," Donald said. "At this school, students only come if they are serious about following a career in this profession."

The three-story building opposite Marks & Spencer was part of Woolwich Polytechnic before it moved, and has been home to Millennium for five years.

Donald is also keen to invite other schools to check out what goes on at a professional theatre school, and give dance demonstrations.

"I wish I'd had the training available now," he says ruefully as he guides me round, a slight gait to his walk from years of ballet discipline. "I wasn't trained until I was 17. All my uncles were coal miners – where was I going to learn ballet in a small town in Scotland at that time?"

The school is for over 16s and fees are around £11,000 a year, though there's an award scheme offering funding for some places.

Church marks two decades

THE New Wine Church is going ahead with its 20th anniversary celebrations later this month, after the sudden death of its founder, Dr Tayo Adeyemi on June 30.

There is a week of celebrations to mark the two decades, with a public civic service on Thursday July 25.

Dr Adeyemi, a borough dean, set up the church in 1993, and built the congregation to more than 5,000.

The service begins at 1pm at the church's HQ on John Wilson Street, and lasts 90 minutes.

There will be speeches and a dance performance from the New Wine's in-house troupe, Word in Motion.

The celebrations begin on Wednesday July 24 and finish on Sunday July 28.

Administrator at the church, Tony Shatimehin said: "It is a huge thing for us to mark 20 years in Woolwich. It is now part of our home, so it is a big deal. We'd like to invite everyone to come and help us celebrate the occasion."

Royal park police host free family fun day

POLICE officers in charge of policing Greenwich Park have organised a community fun event in the heart of the park. The free event is on Sunday July 21 from 10am to 4pm and takes place by the bandstand area between Blackheath Avenue and Great Cross Avenue. Historic police vehicles, police horses, and a band from the Blackheath Rock Choir will feature. And there'll be a guided tour of the Queen's Orchard. The Dog Society is also taking part, providing guidance on general dog ownership. Police Sergeant John Feeney, who polices the park, said: "We are hoping that many people will turn up to enjoy the event which has been carefully put together - if you like dogs, horses vintage cars and a day out, please come along. We look forward to seeing as many people as possible."

● A team of 14 dedicated police officers is in charge of keeping

Greenwich Park safe. They are part of the Metropolitan Police Service and specifically of the Royal Park Operational Command Unit. The team have an office inside the park and conduct regular patrols. Call 07768 090606 or email Greenwichpark@met.pnn.police.uk

GARDEN OF EVEN: Goldie Leigh day centre users are joined by volunteers and visitors to work in the garden

Open day showcase projects for special people

by Dick Townsend-Smith

TWELVE projects for adults with learning difficulties opened their doors for the public to learn about the many different services on offer that can help change lives.

The focus was National Learning Disability Week, which provides the opportunity for families, friends and carers to find out more about the work done by the council and other agencies to create opportunities for people with learning issues.

They included the Waterfront sports project in Woolwich, where members put on displays of aerobics and water aerobics for visitors, and the Middle Park Project, where residents screened a video of a recent drama performance.

GT called on the Goldie Gardens Horticultural Project on Lodge Hill, on the site of the old Goldie Leigh Hospital. It helps mainly men to take part in gardening and learn about horticulture.

This includes planting, growing, watering and maintaining and designing the garden. The project was set up on site with help from the council in partnership with the Building Lives charity and support services provider Lakehouse.

One of the visitors was Cllr John Fahy, the royal borough's cabinet member for health, adults and older people. He said: "I was very impressed by the work that is helping to make improvements in the health and well-being of people taking part, and pleased to see it at first hand."

Another successful venture to open its doors was The Green Project, a community recycling initiative on the Woolwich Common estate that enables adults with learning difficulties and physical disabilities to learn skills in reusing and recycling a range of materials. Project goers learn arts and crafts, and gardening and woodwork skills to create gardening tools and accessories and recycle furniture and toys that would otherwise be sent for landfill. They also help maintain a garden on the estate.

The group raised £250 for Cancer Research after a sponsored day of exercise and walking last month.

● Anyone who has furniture that could be recycled can contact the project on 020 8316 5020.

Local projects' lotto vote plea

PEOPLE are urged to get their votes in for two local projects so they stand a better chance of winning a £2,000 prize in a National Lottery award.

The Cutty Sark is one of seven finalists in the category of best heritage project, while the Men in Sheds project, which helps older men who are socially isolated, is a finalist in the best voluntary/charity project category.

The awards are part of an annual search to find the UK's favourite Lottery-funded project. The famous ship was qualified after National Lottery funding helped to conserve the original Grade I listed structure and transform it into a 21st century tourist attraction. Voting ends at midnight on July 24.

MAKING LEISURE CENTRES BETTER FOR 20 YEARS...

In 1993, Greenwich Council needed to find a new way to run its leisure centres. Together, the staff and Council came up with a ground breaking new model, and Greenwich Leisure Limited (GLL), the first of the new breed of leisure trusts in the UK, was born.

Unlike many private companies, GLL is a staff led charitable social enterprise, dedicated to making leisure centres and libraries better for everyone. We're an ethical business that trades with a social purpose and our staff invest time, energy and effort (along with any financial surplus generated), into helping make life better for Greenwich residents through the services we offer.

In July this year, we're 20 years old and are as excited about the future today, as we were back in 1993. We've recently moved beyond leisure centres too. We also run the borough's libraries, adventure playgrounds, and Southmere boating centre. And what's more, we've also begun to lovingly restore the Royal Greenwich Lido in Charlton's Hornfair Park. The first phase is now open, with a 50m Olympic sized heated outdoor pool and later this autumn, we'll be adding a state-of-the-art gym, studio and much more.

We'll also be operating the Copper Box Arena and Aquatic Centre on the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park following the successful London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. So, for all our customers and supporters in Greenwich, there are exciting times ahead.

Under our Better brand, we now operate leisure centres across London and beyond. But whatever we do, we'll always remain true to our social enterprise, co-operative and charitable roots as one of the Royal Borough of Greenwich's most dynamic and successful companies. To everyone that's played a part in our journey to date, thank you. We look forward to the next 20 years...

Spice invaders!

Steve's chilli reception in his own back garden

by Peter Cordwell

WHEN it comes to home-grown talent, Steve Page might not take the biscuit but he certainly takes the chillis, chutneys and jams.

And he's proud to label his hand-made, award-winning produce – every bottle of it - Made In Eltham!

Steve's assorted chillis, from Peruvian White to Tasmanian Hot and taking in Pusa Jwala and Joe's Long Cayenne, are his speciality and all from his back garden.

The ever-smiling home farmer even admits that his chillis have been something of a life-saver. "I've always been a keen grower, right from when my dad bought me a greenhouse," 57-year-old Steve told GT. "Then I spent 30-odd years in international banking and hated the last 10. It all became too much for me."

"So I took an evening class in gardening in 2005. I grew a couple of chillis and got so much fruit off them. I made my own curries and chilli con carne and gave the chillis away to friends and family."

"I took redundancy from banking in 2007 after really struggling health-wise. My wife Anne was behind me, an absolute rock, and I started the business with six sauces and six chutneys."

Someone soon asked Steve if he could make jam. He'd never done it before but now has 30 different kinds of jams and marmalade, his triple citrus (orange, lemon and white grapefruit) winning three gold stars in the Guild of Fine Food's great taste awards in 2010.

MADE IN ELTHAM AND PROUD OF IT: Steve with his amazing variety of home-made chillis and sauces, and left, in his garden

"I try to get all my fruit from Kent and south-east London growers so I know where it's come from," said Steve, whose business is CareGrow

Fine Preserves. "I'll never make a fortune out of this because I won't buy cheap fruit and I don't use chemicals. It's also gluten-free."

"I've got a great relationship with Greenwich environmental health and trading standards because I want to keep up with all new developments and standards."

"I got my shelves from Woolworth's when they closed, so there's a little bit of heritage there too."

Steve sells his produce at various farmers' markets, including the third Sunday of the month in Passey Place, Eltham. "I also try to do as many local events as possible," he said. "I always do the spring and summer fairs at Well Hall Pleasaunce and school fetes. If anyone wants us to do it, we'll be there."

"I love the idea of being a local producer. I'm an Eltham boy and really proud to produce stuff from Eltham and from my own back garden."

CHARLTON CHIEF: Addicks' boss Chris Powell on the pitch to season-ticket holders for the 2013/14 season. Season-ticket holders who wish to attend should reply by email to clubday2013@cafc.co.uk with their name, address and membership number (beginning with CON) to be in with a chance of joining the first team on the pitch or entry to one of the day's Q&A sessions. Owning a 2013/14 season ticket gives supporters a range of benefits, including two free matchday tickets to selected home games for family and friends.

The club has also calculated that fans can save up to £134 by reserving their place at The Valley instead of purchasing tickets on a match-by-match basis.

Season tickets can be purchased between 9am and 5pm weekdays or 10am to 1pm on Saturdays.

THE borough's parks are currently playing a starring role in PARKSfest - a month-long series of free open air events that are part of the Royal Greenwich Festivals summer programme.

Now a group of devoted park friends are preparing to launch a special exhibition about their favourite outdoor spaces.

They've been carrying out detailed research and collecting memorabilia for the Charlton Parks Reminiscence Project - a special archive focussed on six parks in Charlton which include Horn Fair, Charlton Park, Maryon Wilson Park, Maryon Park, Gilbert's Pit and the Barrier Gardens.

The parks were formerly part of the Maryon-Wilson family estate which was gradually sold off.

The project looks at the history of each park, how they developed and their importance to local people through their stories. It started a couple of years ago with support from the Heritage Lottery Fund and Viscount Gough, current lord of the manor, and is also supported by the royal borough, Greenwich Heritage Centre and Firepower, the Royal Artillery Museum.

Fond memories of those luscious swards that stretch from Woolwich Road up to Shooters Hill (on page 106 of the A-Z) are featured on a website at www.charltonparks.co.uk and in a 46-page illustrated booklet available at main libraries and at the Tourist Information Centre.

Oral and written memories and memorabilia have been pouring in - and it's not too late to add your support by submitting photos, prints, old maps, postcards, newspaper and magazine cuttings or sketches showing how much we all appreciate the rolling grasslands and majestic tree-scapes of SE7.

Artefacts could feature in the forthcoming exhibition which runs throughout September at Greenwich Heritage Centre in the Royal Arsenal. Reminiscence group project manager Carol Kenna explained that September's event follows a similar display at Charlton House last July: "We'll be displaying some additional items together with material from the Heritage Centre," she said. "We've got the minutes book from the bowls club that used to play in Horn Fair and other mementos like that along with original photos that people have taken. We're merging them with items from the Heritage Centre including postcards of old places."

She added: "People love their open spaces and there are now at least 17 'Friends of Parks' groups, two of which operate in Charlton. This borough 'stands out' in London for being one of the 'green boroughs' and it's important that the council and the Friends groups work together to retain and maintain our commons and parks."

Dig out any Charlton Parks' memorabilia you have and drop it off at Charlton House "for the attention of" Carol Kenna. Mark your material clearly with your name, address and daytime telephone number so it can be returned. People can also submit written stories, pictures and cuttings and scan and email to them carol@greenwichmuralworkshop.com

Dimbleby's just deserts

FOR the first time in wartime Britain, the Allies had a victory. At last there was hope where before, there was none. But did success in the desert at El Alamein really change the course of World War Two?

"It was a seminal moment," commentator and historian, Jonathan Dimbleby told Scene ahead of a talk at Blackheath Halls. "It marked a clear turning point and gave the Allies a morale-boosting victory."

In his persuasive new book, Destiny in the Desert, Dimbleby makes a powerful case, weaving political and strategic considerations into the narrative of a complex battle.

"It came naturally," he said. "It's what I've been doing for most of my professional life."

In the newly restored-to-former-glory Recital Rooms at the Lee Road venue, the BBC presenter (pictured below) handled his audience with the authority of a general at a briefing.

First an amusing political anecdote, then an impression of Churchill before getting straight down to business.

In his weighty tome, the protagonists are resurrected by judicious use of detail – the British prime minister's endless meddling through his incessant telegrams to the front, and Rommel's devotion to his partner in daily letters to his wife.

In his assessment of Montgomery – favourite of Churchill and conventional hero of El Alamein, Dimbleby courts controversy. "He was dogged and fortunate but also hugely self-centred and he took over when victory was inevitable," he said. Dimbleby goes further, unveiling an abrasive, intolerant and shameless self-publicist, relentless in the pursuit of his objective. "We will stand and fight here. If we can't stay here alive, then let us stay here dead," Monty asserted at the time.

On the night, the author ran through the cast of characters – "a soap opera larger than life" – the politics, the strategy and the battles that changed Europe forever. The scene duly set, he moved on to the personal, the stories that capture our hearts. "What did your father think of Churchill?" somebody asked. His response was succinct: "Many will talk of him that are, as yet, unborn."

The narrative pace of Destiny in the Desert itself is unrelenting, and the sentences crafted like Flaubert. "Narrative drive is my litmus test," the author told Scene. "I have to enjoy what I write."

The battle at El Alamein was ferocious, and after two weeks of fighting, 40,000 bodies lay strewn across the sands of North Africa. Intertwined in the telling are personal moments – the dying sergeant who called for his mother or the tank captain whose crew were incinerated. But for Dimbleby too, the past echoes loudly.

His father, Richard, was the BBC's War Correspondent for Egypt. Dimbleby Junior seems similarly driven and is now "feverishly researching the Battle of the Atlantic", for a new book. Thoroughly compelling. 9/10

HUNDREDS of people crammed into General Gordon Square to watch the men's Wimbledon final on Sunday last week.

They saw Andy Murray crowned champion at the All England Club – the first British man to do so for 77 years.

The Royal Opera's La rondine was shown in the square on Thursday, July 11. Bathed in late sunshine, the performance – which began at 7.30pm – drew an audience of around 200.

The musical performance was beamed live from the Royal Opera House in Covent Garden, central London.

Greenwich and Lewisham Young People's Theatre provided entertainment before and after the screening on Thursday evening.

Two drama groups from the theatre based in the Tramshed performed routines.

Zoe Lally, manager at GLYPT told Scene: "The Lotus Dance Company – who won first prize in a London-wide street dance competition – were stunning. The audience seemed to love it."

It was part of a programme of sporting and musical events being shown on the big screen in the square over the summer. There is more opera this Thursday in the square.

Zoe added: "It was great for the students to see something different that they might not have been exposed to otherwise."

"It's really nice that something from central London is being screened in Woolwich."

More sporting action on the big screen comes courtesy of the golf Open Championships, which run from

SO DIVINE: jazz singer Emma Divine plays this weekend

Big send-off for PARKSfest

THE weather has turned for the good - just in time for the climax of PARKSfest 2013.

Fifteen separate events have so far been held at parks and open spaces across the borough, with just three more to go over the coming weekends, as part of the Royal Greenwich Festivals.

On July 21 Winn's Common hosts Plumstead Live, a free music festival headlined by jazz-soul singer, Emma Divine, who played a run of concerts during the Olympic events in Greenwich town centre last year.

It's been a busy year for the south-east London songstress, and Scene caught up with Emma as she came from the BBC London radio studios, having just recorded a live session for Robert Elms.

The singer said: "I'll be playing with a full band in Plumstead - double bass, drums, keys sax and trumpet."

The hour-long show at 3pm will comprise original material from Emma's forthcoming album, as well as a few covers.

She added: "I played last year at the Greenwich Summer Festival, and that went really well. I bring a cabaret element to jazz and blues songs, and always involve the audience - they're like my backing singers!"

Also on the bill are Arthur Lea's Bootleg Brass band, giving a south London twist to New Orleans jazz and blues.

Dan Waller brings his own brand of funk-soul to the festival which runs from 3pm to 8pm at the park just off King's Highway.

Kicking off the festivities are Carol Jack and Band, with a blend of soul, funk and jazz.

There are refreshments in the shape of ice creams, tea and coffee, hot dogs and a pie 'n' mash stall.

PARKSfest comes to a close the following weekend, July 28, with Sunday Music at Well Hall Pleasance, and Song and Dance at the Tarn.

The Well Hall event features music from Tina T and Simply Smooth from 2pm to 4pm. London's self-styled 'No.1 Soul Diva' plays with her band in the picturesque grounds of the Tudor Barn. The band consists of sax and percussion, backing the singer who also plays in Motown Supreme Divas - a three-part harmony girl group playing the best soul songs from the Sixties.

Over at the Tarn, opposite Mottingham station, on July 28, there's Song and Dance, live music with dancing from 2pm to 4pm.

All PARKSfest events are free to attend.

LABAN THEATRE

Animate Greenwich.

Thurs Aug 1-Fri Aug 2
If you'd like to be a DJ, develop piano skills and become a guitar genius, Animate Greenwich should be right up your street. The summer course kicks off at Laban Theatre in August for two days of music-making workshops. Participants can be of any level of experience in music and must be in the school year groups 5 to 8 and have a love of music. The sessions will give youngsters the opportunity to perfect their skills in music technology, DJing, learning an instrument and singing in orchestra. Ideally, you need to bring your own instrument along. Those involved could be invited to perform in an Animate Orchestra performing ensemble which will involve Animate groups from across the London boroughs. Animate Greenwich is on Thursday August 1 and Friday August 2 from 9.30am-4pm. £16/£5 for children in receipt of free school meals. 020 8305 3883. www.animateorchestra.org.uk

GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 348

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed. Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to: For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time. For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 24 July 2013 at midday and will include any Housing Association properties when available. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 21 July 2013.

SPORT

Sabrina leads way to the Palace gold

Siobhan Samuel set a new British record for Year 8 girls in the indoor rowing with 842m.

Sabrina was the star of the track. "It was very tiring but it feels great. I just really came here to support my borough and just go out and try my best. I won the 1500m at the English schools on Saturday so I was slightly worried coming here because of the competitors and because of my fatigue so I knew it was going to be a tough race.

"I love going to the Youth Games. It brings all the boroughs together and it's great to see friends who you might not have seen for ages. It's always challenging as London is very sporty and with last year's Olympics a lot of new people have started training and it's amazing to see what the Olympics has done for athletics. Everyone looks up to being the next Mo Farah or Jess Ennis and it's really inspiring."

● THE London Youth Games delivers a legacy from the 2012 Olympics and Paralympics by inspiring more young Londoners to play and volunteer in sport. London's councils, including Greenwich, work with Balfour Beatty and Sport England to support Europe's largest annual youth sports event which has more than 100,000 athletes competing, across 85 competitions over nine months.

Sabrina's double!

Champion weekend for Greenwich track star

by Peter Cordwell

GREENWICH'S Sabrina Sinha had a weekend to remember by claiming the 1500m AND 800m titles at the English Schools Championships and the London Youth Games respectively.

The Cambridge Harrier claimed the national 1500m gold in Birmingham on Saturday, July 6, in a time of four minutes 24.62 seconds, before making her way to the top step of the podium in the shorter distance at the London-wide event at Crystal Palace the following day.

Her performance helped Greenwich to an outstanding gold medal team performance with 50 points, four ahead of Enfield and seven ahead of third-placed Havering.

Greenwich finished 15th in the overall Jubilee Trophy standings at the London Youth Games, while
